MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Arlene sped northeast in the Atlantic Friday after raking Bermuda with winds up to 80 miles an hour.

Because of its forward speed, the season's first hurricane lashed the island chain 670 miles southeast of New York only briefly and gales in the area ended during the afternoon. Damage was negligible.

The storm was moving at about 25 miles per hour and heading away from any land area. Gales extend outward 150 miles in all directions from the center, the Weather Bureau said.

Arlene was expected to continue on a general northeasterly course near 25 miles per hour for the next 12 to 24 hours.

Astronauts Back From Desert Tests

56 wytyxc Astronauts NL h32c9 RENO, Nev. (AP) — America's nine new astronauts returned Friday from the Nevada desert, where it was hotter than inside a space capsule burning through the atmosphere on re-entry.

After a press conference they went to lunch at their first real meal in three days.

They were training for a possible desert landing after a space flight.

On the Nevada desert they encountered a sand blizzard, 135-degree sand-level temperatures and pounding rain. They also ran across rattlesnakes and scorpions.

Day Resigns From Cabinet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — J. Edward Day left the office of postmaster general Friday with a prediction that the 1964 Republican nominee will be Richard M. Nixon.

Day, 43, a former Los Angeles insurance executive, joined President Kennedy's Cabinet two years ago. He resigned the post, however, and plans to work as an attorney in Washington, D.C.

In Washington, Day will head the capital office of a Chicago law firm. He said in an interview earlier that he regretted leaving the Cabinet.

Senate Defeats Satellite Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate narrowly defeated Friday a move to slow down the race for the moon and accepted a compromise plan for the new communications satellite corporation to pay for some of its birth pangs.

Then the Senate passed by voice vote a new $5.5-billion space program, with most of the money earmarked for the plan to put a man on the moon by 1970. A conference committee will try to adjust differences between the bill and a House version which was more than $300 million lower.

Downed Navymen Rescued At Sea

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — An Italian intercoastal vessel early Saturday rescued all eight men from a twin-engine U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane that fell into heavy seas during a thunder storm off the Amalfi coast Friday night.

The Navy earlier had said 12 men were aboard but later revised this to eight.

The eight were picked up from a life raft launched from the CL17 Dakota after it ditched.

Kefauver Has Heart Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office of Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., said Friday he has suffered a mild heart attack and is in the U. S. Naval Hospital, in nearby Bethesda, Md.

A statement by Kefauver's administrative assistant said "doctors have ordered complete rest for at least three weeks."

The assistant, Charles Caldwell, told a reporter Kefauver's condition is not considered serious.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied strongly Friday on the heaviest volume in a month.

In addition to relief at the mild tone of the final chapters of the Securities and Exchange Commission's study of the securities industry, the market was helped by an optimistic appraisal of business by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, hopes for a break in the railroad work rules deadlock and progress of the tax cut bill in Congress.

Volume jumped to 4.04 million shares, highest since July 11, from 3.46 million Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 4.21 to 708.39.

Chlorine Blankets North Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Poisonous chlorine gas escaping from a railroad tank car blanketed a six-block area of thickly populated northeast Philadelphia Friday, sending more than 275 people to hospitals for treatment.

At least 43 of the victims were admitted to the four hospitals receiving them, including 24 police and firemen.

A fire department spokesman said the accident "could have been a real disaster", but a team of masked firemen, using kit of special tools known as a chlorine capping unit, sealed off the leak before the gas could reach fatal concentrations.

As it was, hundreds were sickened, and the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) reported that household pets also were temporarily sickened by the fumes.

New Law Halting Fake Fund Drives

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton signed into law Friday a bill aimed at stamping out phony fund raising in the name of charity or other good causes. The new act, scheduled to take effect Nov. 8, will require charitable organizations to register with a new commission in the Department of State.

The groups will have to spell out the nature of their work, their federal tax status, prior financial activities as audited by an independent public accountant, the names of individuals involved in the work, and those responsible for the custody and distribution of money.

The commission will be headed by George I. Boom, secretary of commonwealth, and include the secretaries of health and welfare and three members to be appointed by the governor.

Charitable Organizations defined by the new law to include agencies that are benevolent, educational, philanthropic, humane, patriotic, and religious.

Certain religious organizations, educational institutions, hospitals, membership organizations and veterans groups which raise less than $2,000 a year are to be excluded from the registration requirement.

Scranton also signed an administration bill revising the state's controversial prevailing wage act. The effective date is Sept. 1.

"This act is a great improvement over the original law and a huge step forward in this type of legislation," said William P.

Expressions Of Sympathy Arrive In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

From around the world Friday came expressions of sympathy assuring President and Mrs. Kennedy that others share their grief at the death of their new son, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy.

The infant, the first family's third child, was born prematurely on Wednesday and died early Friday morning, ending more than 39 hours of anxious watchfulness which million of people also had shared with the chief executive and his wife, Jacqueline.

From the Vatican, Pope Paul VI sent a private telegram of condolence to the President and Mrs. Kennedy.

Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston who will officiate at private funeral services for the baby on Saturday, said: "It will be a special comfort to the President and his wife that everything possible was done to save the life of the infant. They will know that the baby now lives in the nursery of the kingdom of heaven."

Senate Pauses

When the Senate convened in Washington at noon, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said: "I know I speak for the Senate, the Congress and the people of the nation and the world in expressing a deep sense of sadness at the untimely passing of Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, son of the President."

The House of Representatives was not in session.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York sent a message of condolence. As was true in many other cases, it was not made public because of its personal nature.

Flags At Half Mast

Indiana's Gov. Matthew E. Welsh ordered flags at the state house in Indianapolis flown at half mast. He also sent a telegram saying: "Mrs. Welsh and I extend to you our sincere condolences on the death of your son. I am sure all the people of Indiana join with us in this expression of sympathy."

From Helsinki, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and his wife, Lady Dorothy Macmillan, sent a private expression of sympathy.

France's President Charles de Gaulle and Madame de Gaulle sent a message of condolence.

The news took first place in European newspapers. In London it took precedence over Britain's great train robbery. The Evening News had a black headline across page one—"Jackie's Baby Dies."

He specifically cited a $15 million capital improvement program, including a new library.

"No one can seriously deny that the prestige of Mansfield State College stands at an all-time high," his letter said, adding: "These achievements have been brought about with the help of a loyal Board of Trustees and administrative staff."

"As you can see, I have not chosen to indulge in polemics in this letter."

"I consider the welfare of the college, students, faculty and staff more important than any individual feelings. I shall leave the college without feeling any need to justify or defend these past six years of accomplishment."

The DPI investigation was made by a three-member team of state officials. Their report said that there was lax administration at the college and low student morale. The report also said Rathgeber was frequently absent from his post.

But police said the best hope of locating the gang would come either when the thieves fell out or one of them began to spend money wildly.

McArthur denied reports that Scotland Yard received a tip some time ago that a big train robbery was being planned by the underworld.

He declined to be drawn into a discussion of clues.

The loot was contained in 110 mail bags. McArthur said one large truck might have been able to carry it all away.

Good Morning!

Maybe this country would not be in such a mess today if the Indians had adopted more stringent immigration laws.

World Mourns Death Of Kennedy Child

BOSTON (AP) — Tiny Patrick Bouvier Kennedy died Friday after only 39 hours and 12 minutes of life, and messages of sympathy poured in from all parts of the world for his parents, President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Patrick's short life was a constant battle against an ailment dreaded in premature babies. He was born by Caesarean section 5½ weeks before full term. He succumbed to hyaline membrane disease—a membrane formation in the lungs.

Doctors explained the disease left a thin membrane in the infant's lungs which prevented oxygen from reaching the blood.

The third child of the President and his wife, Jacqueline, 34, succumbed at 4:04 a.m., as a team of doctors strove to keep his faint heartbeat alive.

JFK Stood Nearby

The President had been aroused from bed and stood nearby in Boston's Children's Medical Center as the infant died.

Dr. Leonard W. Cronkite Jr.,

general director of the center, said: "We fired all the guns there were to fire."

In words of religious comfort, the President's close friend, Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, said: "He now lives in the nursery of the children of heaven."

Cardinal Cushing will say a private "Mass of the Angels" in his chapel at 10 a.m. Saturday. The President will fly up from Otis Air Force Base, where his wife is still hospitalized, to attend the service.

Burial will be in Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline.

After the services the President will return to Otis. Only immediate members of the family will attend.

The President left the medical center flew down to Otis, arriving about 9:30 at the hospital.

A doctor had told the mother her youngest child had died. She received the word at 6:35 a.m., from her obstetrician, Dr. John W. Walsh. She then was given a mild sedative and slept until the President arrived.

Spends Time With Jackie

Kennedy spent more than two hours in his wife's suite at the base hospital.

Also on hand were the President's two brothers, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and Mrs. Kennedy's mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, and Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill.

To Stay With Pat

Press secretary Pierre Salinger said one or more of them will stay with Mrs. Kennedy at the Otis Air Force Base Hospital during the ceremony.

He said the President's mother, Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, telephoned Friday afternoon from Paris and spoke to the President and his wife.

He said the President dissuaded her from returning to the United States for the funeral.

The President and his brother Edward spent an hour and 20 minutes with Mrs. Kennedy Friday afternoon. When they returned to the Squaw Island summer White House, they drove to see their father, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

Salinger said it was the first time the President had talked with his father since the baby's death.

Condolence Messages

Salinger said that messages of condolence have been pouring into the White House "by the thousands" and that many are heads of states all over the world.

Among those who sent them were Pope Paul VI, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain, Prime Minister Charles de Gaulle of France and U.N. Secretary General U Thant.

In Wake Of Investigations

Rathgeber Resigns As College Head

HARRISBURG (AP) — The president of Mansfield State College resigned Friday, effective Sept. 4, in the wake of investigations by two state agencies of his administration.

In a letter to Milford Paris, chairman of the Board of Mansfield, Dr. Lewis W. Rathgeber said "I shall leave the college without feeling any need to justify or defend these past six years of accomplishment."

Schedule Cancelled

Paris immediately cancelled a scheduled meeting of the board to have been held today in the Department of Public Instruction Building here. The board meeting was to have heard a report on a Justice Department investigation of Rathgeber's administration.

On July 24 John Ingram, state secretary of administration, recommended that Theodore Spentzas, Mansfield College business manager, be dismissed because of what he termed "a number of irregularities in accounting and relating procedures at the college."

The college administration was investigated first by the Department of Public Instruction. That investigation began because of student protests against Rathgeber. The protests centered mainly on the dismissal of an assistant dean of women.

The DPI investigation was made by a three-member team of state officials. Their report said that there was lax administration at the college and low student morale. The report also said Rathgeber was frequently absent from his post.

But police said the best hope of locating the gang would come either when the thieves fell out or one of them began to spend money wildly.

McArthur denied reports that Scotland Yard received a tip some time ago that a big train robbery was being planned by the underworld.

He declined to be drawn into a discussion of clues.

Break In Main Cuts Bangor Water Supply

BANGOR — Patrons of the Bangor Water Company in Bangor, Roseto, and Washington and Upper Mt. Bethel Townships are urged to conserve the uses of water until Monday noon, Frederick W. Baker, manager, said last night.

Baker said a serious break in an inaccessible water main in the mountains has made it imperative that patrons refrain from washing cars, and sprinkling lawns.

He pointed out that an adequate supply of water should be available until Monday, if patrons are careful in their use of water.

ANALOMINK — One man was injured last night in a single car accident on Rt. 191 one-quarter mile south of Analomink.

The man was identified by a spokesman for the General Hospital of Monroe County as Donald Clifton. They gave no age or address.

The spokesman said the victim was being treated for facial lacerations.

State Police from the Stroudsburg barracks were investigating the accident. They said that the car was traveling north when it ran off the road and struck a guard rail. They will continue the investigation today.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 15—20.

God promised Abraham that he would be the father of a multitude of nations, but he had no children. Sarah, his wife, finally gave him her Egyptian servant, Hagar, who became the mother of Ishmael.—Genesis 16.

As Abraham sat before his tent one day, three strangers came and he refreshed them. God revealed to Abraham his purpose of destroying the wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah.—Genesis 18:1-21.

Abraham pleaded with God to be lenient if he found just a few worthy men there. God agreed, but could find none. Nevertheless, He sent His angels to rescue Lot and his family, Abraham's kin.—Genesis 18:19.

Then the Lord rained on the cities fire and brimstone, destroying all the valley. Lot's wife, disobeying the Lord, looked back and became a pillar of salt.—Genesis 19:24-28.

Teaching The Bible

LIMA, Peru (AP) — American linguists—some of them girls in their 20s—are living among primitive Indians in the jungle wilderness of Peru to master unwritten tribal languages as a means of teaching the Bible and other subjects.

It is a life that often is dangerous and always is lonely. They are cut off from civilization by hundreds of miles of trackless rain forests and mountains. Their only contact with the outside world is shortwave radio.

The linguists are struggling with the tongues of 30 tribes in Peru.

Teacher Resigns After 31 Years

WIND GAP—Claude Steiner of Wind Gap resigned as a teacher of the Harmony Class of the Sunday School of Trinity Salem Church in Wind Gap, after serving 31 years.

The announcement was made at the Tuesday night meeting at Weona Park in Pen Argyl.

ranging from the notorious Jivaros, former head hunters, to the peace-loving Piro, who seldom raise their voices in anger.

Most tribes still worship spirits and demons, snakes and animals, wind and water, and the sun, moon and stars. They are extremely superstitious. Some kill their first-born if it is a girl. It is considered a bad omen not to produce a son first.

They generally are peaceful, but there are occasional clashes, usually of a feudal nature. In some of the savage tribes, revenge killing is common. The tribes vary in size from 75 to as many as 30,000.

The linguists, sometimes called "Bible translators," are sent to Peru by the Summer Institute of Linguistics, whose headquarters are in Santa Ana, Calif.

Besides attacking illiteracy, the schools teach the Indians agriculture, public health and civics.

At present there are 185 linguists, teachers, doctors, nurses, pilots and radio technicians from the institute in Peru. Some are single men and women. Family teams are common. Each is responsible for getting his own contributions to support him in the field.

Before coming to Peru, they study linguistics at the University of Oklahoma, the University of North Dakota or the University of Washington.

En route to Peru, they stop at Tuxtla, Mexico, to take a rigid, three-month survival training course.

In Peru, they alternately spend seven months with the tribes and five months at study and rest. They get home leave every five years.

It is no easy job. It sometimes takes months to allay the fears of the savage Indians.

Doris Cox, of Santa Ana, Calif., and Loretta Anderson of Paterson, N.J., tackled the Shapra tribe together. The tribal chief adopted them as his daughters to protect them from men in the tribe.

Rev. Shadid Scheduled As Baptist Guest Speaker

REV. PETER Shadid, a native Syrian and former army officer, converted to the Christian faith and later educated in Eastern and Southern Baptist Theological Seminaries in the United States returns to Lebanon from which border area he will have unlimited opportunity for evangelical work among Arabs.

The Rev. Shadid and his family will sail for the Middle East next week and will be heard in one of their last speaking engagements at the First Baptist Church of East Stroudsburg on Sunday evening, Aug. 11 at 7 p.m.

A former army officer, he was discharged at his own request in order to pursue his theological training in two of the outstanding institutions in the United States. In 1960 and 1961 exploratory trips were undertaken to evaluate the possibilities of work in either Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, or Egypt. Lebanon border areas were chosen because of the proximity of a State Farm School and the possibility of training Christians in modern agricultural methods for the support of their families.

Today's Lesson:

People Of The Covenant

By N. Speer Jones

WE CONTINUE this week with our study of Abraham's life, a study which occupies nearly one-third of the book of Genesis.

On seven different occasions God spoke to Abraham regarding His covenant and promises to him and his descendants. The first three were in chapters 12-13, the second three are in this week's assignment, and the last is in 22:15-18.

After his battle with powerful kings (chapter 14), Abraham probably needed God's reassurance. Thus God tells him that He is his shield. He also implies that while men might scorn him for not having the wealth of Sodom, He, God, for whose sake Abraham had given up that wealth, is Abraham's "exceeding great reward."

The reference in verses 13 and 14 is presumably to the 400 years between the birth of Isaac and the exodus from Egypt.

Hagar, the maid by whom Abraham had his first son, was Egyptian. Most all the original Mohammedans and today's Arabs are descendants of this son, Ishmael. He is to the Arabs what Isaac is to the Hebrews. The original home of these Ishmaelites was in the wilderness of Paran in the southern part of Canaan and east of Palestine, in the land called Edom.

The land of Canaan has come under the domain of both Jews and Arabs today. This does not strictly refute God's promise to Abraham that the land shall belong to his descendants everlasting, for both the Jews and Arabs are descended from him.

The changes in the names of Abraham and Sarah (chapter 17, verses 5 and 15) both involve the addition of the letter H, one of the radical letters of the names JHVH, translated by us as Jehovah. Abram means "exalted father," that is, father of a clan or chief of a tribe. Abraham, however, means "father of a multitude," a meaning indicative of his future role as originator of nations. Sarai was known as "the contentious," whereas Sarah became "princess" and mother of nations.

In verse 18 of chapter 17, Abraham reacts in what at first seems to be a strange way to the announcement of a forthcoming son by Sarah. Although he was very happy at the prospect in one way, in another and quite natural way, he speaks up in favor of Ishmael, now 13, and long presumed to be the promised heir; is he to be merely tossed aside? Thus Abraham frets.

Abraham spent most of his life in Hebron, 22 miles south of Jerusalem. It is there, under the oaks of Mamre, an Amorite chieftain friend of Abraham, that the angels announce to Abraham the forthcoming destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah.

Excellence

There is no excellence without labor; and the time to work, is now.

One that desires to excel should endeavor it in those things that are in themselves most excellent.

—Epictetus

Different men excel in different ways.

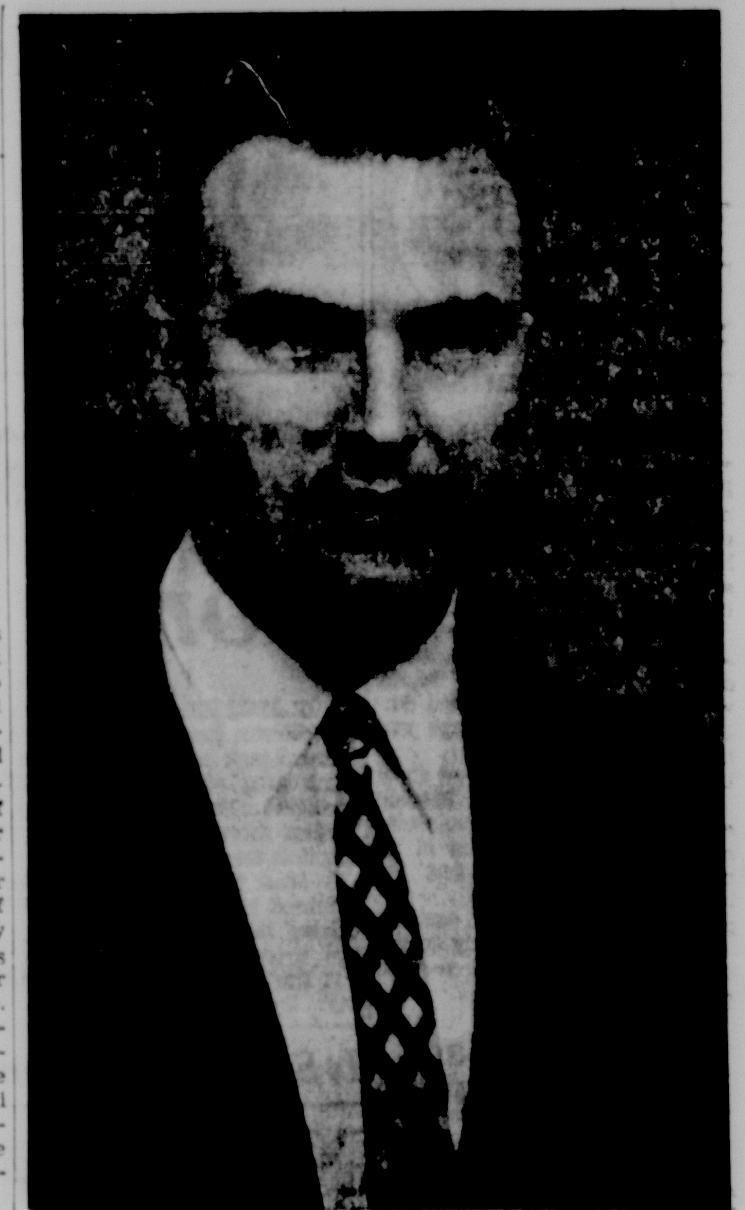

—Pindar

Those who attain to any excellence commonly spend life in some one single pursuit, for excellence is not often gained upon easier terms.

State News Roundup

Phone Strike Threatened

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A strike against the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania if a new contract is not negotiated by the Aug. 14 expiration date of the present pact has been authorized by members of the Federation of Telephone Workers of Pennsylvania.

In a statement Friday, William A. Leary, federation president, said the membership voted "overwhelmingly" on strike authorization. The vote, he added, supports the union's "no contract, no work" position.

A Bell spokesman reported, however, that the company doesn't expect any difficulty in reaching a new contract by the Aug. 14 deadline, adding "bargaining has been going very smoothly."

Should a strike occur, the Bell spokesman said, the company expects to maintain service.

New Mint At Philly Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate agreed to House amendments Thursday and sent to the White House a bill to permit construction of a new mint at Philadelphia.

The government's two mints at Philadelphia and Denver are now working round-the-clock to keep up with an increasing demand for coin.

The bill would authorize $30 million over the next 10 years for buildings and equipment for the Bureau of the Mint.

Miss Eva Adams, bureau head, told Congress last month that the money would be used to replace the now outdated Philadelphia mint and to improve the Denver mint if needed.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said only clarifying language was added by the House to the Senate version of the bill.

Company Seeks Coal Miners

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Wanted: Coal Miners.

The Glen Alden Coal Co. placed that advertisement in Wilkes-Barre newspapers Friday to try to fill its share of a 710,224-ton order for anthracite from the U.S. Armed Forces in Europe. Seven other producers share in the contract.

Why the shortage of coal miners? An industry spokesman said young men are refusing to work in the mines, and older men aren't being replaced.

Some coal companies are paying above-average wages in bidding for experienced miners during the present shortage.

The Pennsylvania State Employment Service reported request for several hundred miners and miners' helpers have been placed with its regional office here.

Utility Requests Billing Change

HARRISBURG (AP)—Columbia Gas of Pennsylvania, Inc., Pittsburgh, proposed a change Thursday in its meter reading system, designed to save $175,000 a year in operating expenses.

The Public Utility Commission said the firm wants to read meters of its 258,000 customers every two months instead of monthly, starting Oct. 1.

While meters would be checked every other month, bills would continue on a monthly basis. Bills would be computed on company estimates in the alternate months between readings, but customers wishing to record their own use of natural gas would be furnished cards on request.

The company said it would also adjust estimates of bills for changes in use if notified in advance.

Mate Poisoner Is Sentenced

NEW CASTLE, Pa. (AP)—A New Castle woman who pleaded guilty to feeding her husband small doses of poison was sentenced Friday to 18 months to three years in jail.

Gayle B. Braddus, 24, was sentenced to the Allegheny County Workhouse near Pittsburgh by President Judge John S. Powers of Lawrence County Court.

She admitted putting poison in the food and medicine of her husband, William, 28, over a three-month span starting last November.

She told police she did it because her husband seemed too independent.

The couple has since been divorced. Authorities said Braddus is still under going periodic treatments at Jamison Hospital for effects of the poisoning.

Mrs. Braddus pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and battery.

Emergency Control Center In Court House Approved

STROUDSBURG — Marvin E. Abel, Monroe County Civil Defense director, told Monroe County commissioners yesterday that official notice has been received approving the proposed emergency operating center in the basement of the courthouse.

Abel said that formal notice was released by the Office of Civil Defense, Department of Defense, in Washington, D.C.

Under the proposed renovations, the courthouse will have 13 additional offices to serve the public and 2,768 additional square feet of working space.

The total floor area of the project, is approximately 9,700 square feet. This includes all offices, rest rooms and dispensary.

Cost of the project will be determined after bids are received from contractors. The bids are slated to be advertised in the near future.

Abel pointed out that due to the emergency operating center, to be located in the basement, half of the cost will be borne by the federal government.

The commissioners said that they feel this project will not only provide day-to-day administrative space and emergency operating center for DC, but will also provide additional needed office space for everyday operations of county offices.

Greene - Dreher Fair Will Feature Muzzle-Loaders

NEWFOUNDLAND — "Get the old muzzle-loader down from the wall, Maw, I'm a-goin' to the Fair!"

That's the word in Newfoundland, where a muzzle-loading rifle shoot will be one of the big features of the 36th annual Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair this year.

While the Civil War Centennial has sparked interest in the old-time weapons, the G-D-S Fair will fan it to flame, for the open shoot—everyone's welcome — will feature prizes and trophies—and the honor of shooting straightest with the weapons of another era.

Adventists Collect Funds For College

STROUDSBURG — The Seventh-day Adventist congregation will take part in an offering today which is expected to reach $100,000. The offering is taken annually in all the Adventist churches of North America and is directed to help in the expansion of Oakwood College at Huntsville, Alabama.

Oakwood is an accredited college for colored young men and women, and is operated by the church.

Local church leaders are desirous that the goal set will be reached, in order that a new girls dormitory and a Fine Arts Center can be realized for the institution.

Students are provided with means to work a large part of their expenses off, by employment in three major industries on the campus, namely a laundry and dry-cleaning establishment, a bakery, and a dairy which offer a source of revenue for students.

Oakwood is situated on a 1,000 acre plot on the edge of the town and the faculty is aiming to make Oakwood College a true center of Christian education where young men and women will be proud to matriculate.

space for control and coordination of emergency procedures during actual operations. Such operations may be a natural disaster, such as the 1955 flood, or, God forbid, an act of war by a foreign government.

Judge Davis was Monroe County Civil Defense director during the Aug. 18, 1955 flood.

In addition to providing CD facilities, day-to-day county offices will be provided, including an expanded probation department.

Included in the plans are new rest rooms for the public and a first-aid room. All of this space will afford adequate fallout protection in the event of any nuclear attack.

Abel said, "In addition to all this, all local subdivisions of Monroe County will benefit, inasmuch as the emergency operating center will coordinate disaster activities.

"The center will have telephone, radio, and teletype communications for contact with federal and state disaster agencies in any emergency," he added.

Around The Clock

Abel continued, "To carry out efficient emergency operations from federal to local levels, in accordance with the federally approved county operations plan, 25 CD key personnel—on three, eight hour shifts—around the clock for two weeks, self-sustained, are necessary to man the center.

"Therefore, to accommodate the required personnel during emergency operations, the day-to-day office space will serve dual purpose and be converted into county CD emergency operating center, as office space and dormitory facilities," he concluded.

The project, designed by Rinker, Keifer and Rake, includes adequate lighting, heating, ventilation and air-conditioning, refinishing of walls and ceilings, an emergency water supply provided by drilling a well and pumping facilities, emergency generators for power and light, showers for decontamination, supply and maintenance space, all of which make the facility self-contained.

Fallout protection was established throughout the entire project.

Furnishings, emergency food and medical supplies are under separate matching fund programs.

Test Ban Spreads

Already 62 of the world's 114 nations have said they intend to sign the new nuclear test ban treaty drawn up by the United States, Britain and Russia.

And the State Department says more than 100 are expected to do so eventually. The response is surprisingly sudden and almost universally in favor of the treaty as a step toward a more peaceful world.

One of the arguments for the treaty was that it would help to stop the spread of nuclear weapons to nations which do not have them and would prohibit invention and development of new weapons by nations which have some nuclear devices.

Already that is proved valid by the agreement of both Israel and Egypt to join the treaty. These two nations, suspicious of each other gaining nuclear power, have eased at least one source of conflict.

Another of the arguments for the treaty is that when almost all the nations on the earth sign, it will be difficult even for France, which has said it will not sign, to continue testing in the atmosphere against world-wide condemnation.

So the treaty is already bearing fruit, even before the U. S. Senate has ratified it.

Unusual Blood Donation

Not every blood donor has the privilege of giving blood to the wife of the President of the United States, but just about everyone who gives blood helps to save someone's life.

Airman John M. Bolger of Jersey City, N. J., a six-foot laboratory technician at Otis Air Force Base Hospital where Mrs. Kennedy gave birth to her third child Wednesday, said he "just happened to have" the same blood type when an emergency arose.

The first lady needed two pints of A-1 (RH Positive) blood during the Caesarean section birth of her son, Patrick. Bolger had the right type and was available and willing to help.

Not every blood donor has that opportunity, but Dr. Gordon Bell, director of the Red Cross Regional Blood Center, said this week that Monroe County blood donors have saved 363 lives during the past 13 years.

"Blood donors can consider themselves as playing a big, vital part in the life-saving team that provides life's most precious fluid to those who need it," Dr. Bell said.

Your next chance to make this small sacrifice, with no danger to your own health, is next Thursday at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Give it a try if you haven't done it before.

Interstate War

Daniel Boone's Rifle Feud

(This is the Kentucky version of the "feud" between Kentucky and Pennsylvania over who should claim Daniel Boone and his flintlock rifle. It comes from the Kentucky Department of Public Information.)

Frankfort, Ky.—A squabble between Pennsylvania and Kentucky will be settled in typical Kentucky style this fall when riflemen from the two states shoot it out to determine which one should rightfully claim the frontier long rifle.

The flintlock rifle, Pennsylvanians say, was first made by gunsmiths in that state. Kentuckians reply that the old muzzle-loaders were so powerful they had to be exported to be fired by Kentucky marksmen.

To complicate claims on the famous weapon, Pennsylvanians pointed out recently that Daniel Boone, whose name is closely linked with it, was born in the Quaker state.

Boone in Kentucky

Kentuckians retort that it is to Boone's credit that he had the good sense to leave and come to Kentucky.

Idea for the rifle match originated with Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton, a Republican, who dispatched a party of eight Pennsylvanians on horseback to deliver the challenge to "Kentucky Gov. Bert Combs. The "invaders" reached Frankfort, the State capital, in 20 days, roughly following the old Wilderness Road opened by Boone.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Even A Cold Takes Time To Heal

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

"Every time I get out of bed, my knees give way. All I want to do is get back to bed."

This is the typical complaint of many people who have been confined to bed with a simple cold, a virus infection, bronchitis or the gripe. Technically, the condition is called "post-infectious asthenia," and it means "weakness after an infection."

It is often surprising to patients that a relatively simple illness can be followed by such marked deactivation and loss of energy. Nature has a built-in protective mechanism which dictates when the body is ready to resume normal activity. An extra day or two of rest after an infection gives body reserves the time to be replenished.

Recovery Treatment

For a more rapid return to normal health, many doctors advise high protein diets supplemented by vitamins and amino acids. Of course the nature of the illness must determine the need for such additions to the diet.

In their anxiety to hurry back to work, patients are really short-sighted when they return to their regular activities prematurely. Without adequate rest, their productivity is down to a minimum. With an additional period of rest, they find not only that they feel better but that their contribution to their jobs is immeasurably increased.

Indulge yourself. It is no sign of weakness to recognize the signs of post-infectious weakness.

cases of physical abuse of children were listed as accidental injuries.

Frequently, the same child would return to the hospital with new injuries. And so the cycle continued, unbroken—bad temper, child abuse, immunity from police and a reputation of the brazen, unpunished exhibitions of anger or mental disturbance.

Law Steps In

Now a first and important step has been taken to protect children against physical abuse by their parents or guardians. Definitive legislation is in the process of being enacted that will make mandatory a report to police authorities of all obvious or suspected cases of deliberate injury to children. Only then can social and welfare agencies be in a position to offer protection to the child.

Older children, too, will be protected.

To many people it is inconceivable that a legislative act should be necessary to protect children from their parents. Yet the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare has surveyed the national situation and has revealed astonishing statistics of the frequency of such brutality.

While Dr. Coleman cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

Russians May Want Joint Manned Flight To Moon

By FRANK E. CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

Washington (AP) — A top British space scientist has reported to the American space agency that the Russians have shelved, for at least a few years, their original plans to try to send men to the moon.

And top Soviet space scientists, he said, believe the manned moonshot might be more appropriately done on a cooperative international scale, instead of by a single country — if an international body of scientists should deem it worthwhile.

That was the word released Thursday from British astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank experimental station, who reported on a recent visit to Russia.

Soft Landing

But Lovell also reported his beliefs that the Russians plan to:

1. Try to loft an unmanned, instrumented spacecraft to make a "soft landing" on the moon "in a matter of months."
2. Attempt, perhaps sometime in the 1965-1966 period, to lob a manned astronomical observatory into orbit some 200 miles high — with the objective of having the astronomers stay aloft about a week "with immediate return to earth if lethal solar radiation seems probable."

Dear Abby

The Druggist's Dilemma!

DEAR ABBY: A person goes to a physician. First comes the examination, then the diagnosis. Then the physician writes out a prescription for medication. Right? So why does the patient take the prescription to the druggist and ask, "What is this prescription for?" Doesn't he know WHY he went to the doctor? Doesn't he know that most M.D.'s prefer that the patient ask HIM what the medication is for? And that most medication has a wide range of application? And that pharmacists aren't supposed to give medical advice? Also, why do some patients ask the druggist, "Can't you give me HALF a prescription, and if I need more I'll come back?" They don't ask the doctor for half an examination, do they? Or the shoe clerk for one shoe, saying if it satisfies him he'll be back to get the other one? Please tell your readers that the physician prescribes the amount HE thinks the patient should have. Thanks a million.

with a man who refuses to eat store-bought bread? Meet my husband. His mother lived for her family. Her whole life was cooking and baking and she spoiled them all so bad nobody could match her. (She died at 58—worked herself to death.) My husband says store-bought bread tastes like wallpaper paste. I've tried different bakeries and even the frozen kind, but if it came from a store my husband turns up his nose at it. Am I wrong for refusing to stand and bake bread when you can buy it in the bakery?

DEAR ABBY: I have a very good friend who is crazy about BINGO. She always asks me to go to Bingo games with her, and I go, but I don't enjoy it. You see, she is a highly emotional woman, and she beats on me, yells and plays four cards at once. She causes such a big racket in the place and makes us both conspicuous. How can I get out of going to Bingo with her? I enjoy her company everywhere else. I wouldn't hurt her feelings for the world.

DEAR A. A.: You don't have to tell your friend WHY you don't want to go to Bingo games with her any more. Just tell her you don't want to go.

Pocono Mountain School Debate; Report Tragedies; Constitution

Robbins Replies To Regan On Pocono School

Editor, The Daily Record:

Following are the facts (in support of my June 25th speech) for study by Pocono Mountain Joint School taxpayers and to compare them with statements PMJS President Francis R. Regan presented to the Mt. Pocono Rotary Club as published on the front page of The Daily Record, July 18.

Let us see if my statements of June 25 were "unfounded attacks on local school officials" and if (or not) my "criticism is based on facts and not upon selfish interest, personal animosity, or vindictiveness."

I am willing to be judged by the majority of the taxpayers. My public criticism, which has so disturbed Mr. Regan, was for the taxpayers consideration. It is obvious I had no other reason whatsoever.

1. An insurance broker was selected but Mr. Regan does not have the courage to inform the taxpayers that it was my efforts that saved the taxpayers thousands of dollars in order that "the school system have a proper, efficient and reasonable cost insurance program." This is a matter of record as shown by the PMJS board minutes.

2. I did appear before the Policy and Personnel Committee. Mr. Regan does not add to his statement, however, that it was not for my plan of insurance or any other plan regarding health and accident insurance for PMJS employees.

He should have stated I was there to be of help in selecting a plan for the good of the employees and (since the taxpayers must pay for this insurance) a plan satisfactory to the taxpayers' interest.

One expensive mistake in purchasing insurance for the Jointure, was made as the records show, and there should not be another one.

3. There are an impressive number of taxpayers, including myself, who do not agree with Mr. Regan's statement that the jointure has a "most efficient and economical operation." I cannot find a taxpayer who would agree with him or consider his comparison relevant.

4. Mr. Regan states "PMJS is not operated under two heads." Nevertheless the school records show and will prove to anyone the jointure has two heads. One operating independently of the other as I have claimed.

5. The "teams of auditors" have nothing to do with our "mess." Our jointure business affairs and management could be at the lowest efficiency and no auditors, state or local, could do anything about it. That's up to the taxpayers or the directors they elect.

6. Mr. Regan knows PMJS minutes, time and again, record the acceptance of minority committee recommendations. He attempts to avoid the facts with his reference to the jointure board.

My recommendation that no minority decisions should be accepted or adopted by the joint board is most important to all taxpayers. It should not be ignored.

7. He said, "Every person is provided with a seat and treated with courtesy and respect." He has overlooked the time he forbade a person from attending a meeting of the PMJS. This was not an ordinary individual. And there are other cases that could be mentioned.

8. As further proof of his incorrect statements of the facts, my Rotary speech was not a "classification speech." I was acting as chairman of the program committee providing a program for the good of the community and for the benefit of jointure taxpayers.

I spoke as a taxpayer and I did not, in my opinion, go contrary to principles of Rotary International. There are others who concur. I believe, as surely all Rotarians must believe, in freedom of speech, freedom of the press and free public schools.

9. Mr. Regan now believes our jointure can be made "more effective and economical by transition from our present jointure to a union system," however, as a director, he did not support the taxpayers and allow them to vote for the consolidation of our schools.

When our consolidation was formed the Pennsylvania law allowed a jointure by decision of school directors only but a union by the favorable vote of taxpayers. The taxpayers then were not given a chance to express their desires. So, Mr. Regan is now President of his jointure. He seems to now admit the jointure is an expensive experience for the taxpayers.

10. criticism was made of the work of the jointure secretary in any of my statements. I did criticize the work of the business manager.

11. It is agreed by responsible persons that our jointure office of business manager should be filled by a qualified person. I suggest, since Mr. Regan doubts my recommendation for a qualified business manager, that specifications necessary for qualifying as manager of a several million dollar business be drawn up.

Then ask for applications to this important position in the PMJS. Let's find out if my recommendation is or is not a good one. Our President's reference to "four" years as a secretary of a little red school house has not prepared anyone for this most important office as business manager of our jointure.

12. I have never questioned the academic program of the PMJS.

"President of our jointure" admits and states "there is room for improvement in all areas of our system," and "the officers will constantly strive to effect any such improvements." We, the taxpayers will see.

Maybe as a president will continue to try to explain a way out instead of facing the truth.

The records support every statement I made. Therefore the taxpayers can expect prompt action in adopting these recommendations. Otherwise the taxpayers can decide his future.

All jointure taxpayers should contact (by phone or letter) their elected school director or president of their local board, and express their views. If they do they will find the majority of our directors are interested in correcting "the mess."

With the knowledge of the support of the taxpayers these directors will defeat the minority PMJS group and correct the unfortunate situation existing in our jointure.

Mother Says Publicized Tragedies Help To Save Lives

Editor, The Daily Record:

A personal experience moves me to take public exception to Dr. Paul B. Koehler's letter to the editor on Saturday, August 3. You will recall he denounced the publication of pictures showing accident victims.

We experienced a heartbreaking accident, that I now wish would have been publicized as I originally intended. Recently our 14 year old son and one of his friends manufactured a cannon. On Friday, July 26, he purchased (yes, with permission) the gun powder necessary to load and fire the cannon and that night fired it once without mishap.

However, less than twelve hours later on Saturday morning as he again fired the cannon it exploded in his face. He received the full impact of the explosion since he was only inches away from it. His face, neck and chest were burned as the gun powder penetrated his skin.

After a physician treated him, he advised us to consult a plastic surgeon who determined that immediate surgery was necessary. As a result my son was admitted to a Wilkes-Barre Hospital on Tuesday and scheduled for surgery on Wednesday morning.

During the long ride home Tuesday night, through the heartbreak and tears, came the thought of other mothers — for only a mother can feel what I felt that night.

How could I prevent this from happening to some other child? I decided I would have pictures taken of my injured and bandaged son and his "innocent toy" and send it to The Daily Record for publication. If this would succeed in awakening some other boy's parents to the danger of this and similar "toys," my son's injuries would not be in vain.

On Wednesday I waited and prayed for 3 1/2 hours outside the operating room knowing that every bit of gun powder had to be cut out, leaving scars that may or may not disappear as he grows to manhood. Even the surgeon was apprehensive about the outcome.

When they emerged from the operating room the surgeon was beaming — the operation was a huge success. I immediately sank into a rut of relief and my only thoughts were of my son's recovery. Somewhere along the line I forgot about the "other" mothers and their sons.

Today, August 7, I learned the tragic news that two East Stroudsburg boys are in the hospital as a result of a similar accident caused by the use of gun powder. My heart goes out to their parents — for I've lived with their kind of agony.

My conscience will never let me forget that had I not been so self-centered and wrapped up in my own problems, I might have prevented this. Had I followed through with my original intent and publicized my son's accident, the visual evidence might have alerted these parents to the danger, and their boys might not be listed as being in a "guarded condition" today.

It has often been said, "One picture is worth a thousand words." For this reason I advocate the use of pictures as a possible deterrent to accidents of any kind.

I can now recall reading of the inherent dangers connected with firearms, explosives, and 4th of July fireworks. I'm sure one picture might have stuck with me vividly and enabled me to act accordingly.

I do appreciate some of the points made by Dr. Koehler. However, I'm convinced that the majority of newspaper editors and publishers would exercise good judgment in the use of such pictures.

If the printing of such photographs will result in the saving of only one life or make it possible for just one child to forego the pain and suffering resulting from an accident, their use will be more than justified.

Yes, Dr. Koehler, this is a long round about way to take exception to your views on publicizing tragedy, but this time I had to follow through ALL the way. You and many others will undoubtedly, and justifiably, denounce us as parents — you could not call us anything we have not called ourselves.

Thank God our son is alive and recovering nicely, the unfortunate families you referred to lost their loved ones. Please Dr. Koehler, try to see it as I now see it. If publicizing a tragedy will prevent ANOTHER from happening — LET'S DO IT!

Constitutional Convention May Sell Democracy To Socialism

Editor, The Daily Record:

It's getting pretty common around here to read in the papers and hear in speeches slurring remarks about our "Antiquated constitution," our "horse and buggy institution," and generally, a look-down-the-nose attitude toward the Constitution of Pennsylvania which in 10 years will have its 100th birthday. The popular attitude is that anything old is useless.

To promote this frame of mind and set the scene for rush-job streamlining rewrite of our constitution, it is very likely that subversive soundbites are hard at work. All it takes is a few expert writers, a few convincing speakers who also have a talent for acting, and in our anxiety to be modern, we're a pushover.

"Revise the constitution!" That's the cry. Revise what in the constitution? Make it like a piece of putty so that "no" can be squeezed around until it means "yes?" How will the revising be done? By having 150 delegates convene, buy the votes of 80 and sell our democratic freedom out to socialism?

Hurry! "Rush right out to your corner drugstore and buy it now!" Blitskreig is a useful strategy whether the war is hot or cold.

Bennett Cerf

Try and Stop Me

Years ago Betty Comden and Adolph Green wrote a hilarious parody of Sigmund Romberg's "The Student Prince" that they named "The Baroness Bazooka." Romberg, without their knowledge, was in the audience one evening when they performed their parody. Romberg didn't realize it was just a spoof and set the party into an uproar by jumping up and hollering, "It's rank plagiarism! I'm going to sue!"

(Another time Romberg actually protested that a songbird in a tree was copying one of his melodies)

Truth will gain a glorious luster. Not because someone will bluster; But it will give full satisfaction When it's translated into action.

Hidden Lake Property To Be Revitalized

EAST STROUDSBURG—Hidden Lake, carved from a swamp in the days of the great depression, later a millionaire's playground and more recently abandoned to the elements, is scheduled for a rebirth in the near future.

Western Heritage Properties, Ltd., which purchased the 390-acre estate previously owned by the wealthy Kenworthy family, plans to develop it as a residential and recreational area.

J. Douglas Ritchie, vice president of the firm, said yesterday that no definite decision has been made as to whether it will be an all-year-round or only summer development.

But he says it is his firm's idea that the residences should be planned as year-round homes, even if they are not finished as such immediately.

While the 40-acre lake will probably be the hub of recreation facilities to be built on the tract, Ritchie feels that the whole area can be used for recreation.

And when the Tocks Island dam and reservoir is completed and a National Recreation Area is established around it, owners of Hidden Lake properties will have it right at their backdoors.

The development is on high ground which will have the river at its feet when Tocks Island becomes a reality.

Ritchie declines to speculate on the costs of lots in the development pending completion of engineering surveys, but indicates that none will be smaller than one-third of an acre.

The home which the Kenworthys built on the property will probably be used as a community club, he said.

The concept of Hidden Lake originated with the late John L. Westbrock of Stroudsburg, a civil engineer, who acquired acreage from various farms which surrounded the lake, which was then a swamp.

His son, J. Nelson Westbrock, also of Stroudsburg, recalls that

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

JUST BETWEEN US — — — — — Every so often, like a housewife casting a critical eye over the house before company arrives, it's fun to look at the towns to see what the weekend tourists will make of it all. Take sidewalk days, Crazy days or whatever the merchants call their present promotions:

To some visitors, it may look pretty rural: to others it will look cosmopolitan. It reminds me, somehow, of Italy where so much of the living takes place right on the streets: the cafes and flower stalls, the markets and families sitting on doorsteps.

It's a friendlier, livelier way to live where no one needs to feel lonely, as you sometimes do in a strange place where life is lived in compartments and cubicles. Anyway, tourists and townfolks and sales clerks all seemed to be enjoying themselves thoroughly yesterday, including scrambling for shelter during the shower.

However, life got pretty hectic for one sales girl charged with the bin of turtles and horned toads. The horned toads kept crawling out of the bin, and she had a certain reluctance to touch the miniature dinosaurs to put them back.

No such problems vexed the Garden Club booth where they were doing a big business in slips, cuttings, and cut flowers, as well as in fresh basil for drying, which smells sort of like a combination of anise and licorice.

The business and Professional Women had front row seats for sidewalk days, with jewelry apparently the items most members were contributing. Books were being offered by the Anna Logan Society.

In East Stroudsburg, the big benefit was the fountain for those silver bushel baskets twinkling overhead to advertise bushels of bargains.

Out of the hurly burly, John Penta chose the Courthouse Square as a fitting place to baby sit while he and his young son waited for Connie, taking the opportunity, no doubt, to instruct him on the law as a profession.

Directing shows as a profession—whether radio, antique, or Laurel—can get pretty hectic at times, so I imagine Sally Ferrebee is glad that the Antique Show closed last night to give her one full day to rest up for her birthday on Sunday. And I'm just glad it's a weekend.

Business News Forms Starting Point In Looking For Availability Of Jobs

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

Dear Roberta Roesch: At this point I find I'm not landing a job as easily as I thought I would!

For most of my married life I've always felt that if my husband would only say, "Okay, go get yourself a job!", I'd only have to go out and get one.

Didn't Work Out But it's not working out that way and I'm not finding openings in my area.

Since I'm trained to work in an office and had a job for a good many years before my marriage, in these ways I can get things rolling faster by finding out what companies or businesses are having the most turnover and then applying there?

Check Newspaper

Dear R. D.: You can get a line on what's going on in various industries and businesses by reading the business section of your newspaper regularly and making regular trips to the library to read trade journals.

As you do this, note what companies or industries are growing, moving to new areas or going through any other kind of change. Then apply at similar industries personnel changes if they're also in your area, since there may be in the throes of this.

Sirikit Really Works At Being Queen Of Thailand

EDITOR'S NOTE: She's beautiful, beloved and one of the world's best-dressed women. But the villages of her country are filled with poverty and disease. What is the Queen of Thailand doing to help her people? Here is an on-the-spot appraisal of a woman sometimes called the Jackie Kennedy of Asia.

By Doris Klein Bangkok (AP) — A breathless schoolgirl trotted alongside a limousine inching through Bangkok's snarled traffic. She grinned and waved at the young matron inside.

The woman — in pearls, diamonds and Balmain tea dress — smiled and waved back. Then she turned to her companions and sighed:

"I hope we'll always be loved like that."

The lady was Thailand's Queen Sirikit, the Jackie Kennedy of Asia.

Through 13 years of political upheavals, Sirikit, along with her Massachusetts-born husband, King Bhumibol Adulyadej, have survived and grown in popularity.

Some say Sirikit has a lot to do with it.

There's a disarming shyness: When she greeted a couple of visitors recently in the parlor of Chitralada Palace, she apologized for her flawless English, nervously twisted a filbert-sized pearl ring on her finger and explained: "I'm terribly nervous."

There's also royal firmness: She decided to show her visitors her favorite project, the Thai Red Cross Hospital, and ordered a car.

Her court aide protested she didn't have enough time. Sirikit's voice stiffened as she told him, "I think it would be nice to have the Packard." The car was waiting in an instant.

Has Shy Smile But she took time to accept a small charity contribution from a young man whose quaking knees barely permitted him to stand. And she quelled his nerves with a few soft words of thanks.

The soft words, the shy smile and the startlingly beautiful assets of the queen are substantial assets in a country that still reverts to its royalty.

They're more important when Sirikit leaves the comfortable confines of the palace and tours the Thai back country where the villages remain virtually unchanged from the days when Thailand was the kingdom of Siam.

No one has ever told most of the villagers what to eat to keep healthy. There's disease — and not enough medical care.

And there are the Communists. People Need Identity Until recently a king and queen of Thailand had never even visited the up country. King Bhumibol and Queen Sirikit are frequent visitors these days.

"We must give the people some sense of national identity."

"The people were getting used to seeing government officials, but they look to us as their father and mother."

The queen is 31, the king 36. "Women come up to me — they call me 'mother,'" says Sirikit. "And ask how to take care of their children."

"We always bring along our personal physician so he can see that the villagers get what they need."

Since 1939, Thailand has been a constitutional monarchy.

Back home at the palace, the king gets a group of jazz musicians together weekly for a jam session. He has been a jazz buff for years, plays several instruments, composes his own music which plays regularly over the radio.

The queen prefers classical music. She abandoned a dream of being a concert pianist when she married.

When always sweltering Bangkok awakes a bit more in the spring and summer, the king and queen pack their children off to Hua Hin, a coastal resort on the Gulf of Siam.

We love Sidewalk Days. Sure it's a lot of work lugging things in and out, and it's not as comfortable on the sidewalk as it is in the air-conditioned, soft-carpeted shop, but it's a welcome break in routine for us.

And the thing we enjoy most is all the new people who meet us and our bargains. People will leaf through a rack outdoors and rummage through a table full of oddments who would never think of coming inside to do the same thing.

Bargains are bargains, indoors or out, but sometimes maybe we intimidate people by looking more expensive than we are. Take a simple dress and add just the right scarf, just the right pin, and handbag and it looks like a million for practically pennies. That's the way we want all our customers to look, but, indoors or out, we aim to please, not high-pressure. And indoors or out, you're always welcome.

Young Moderns New Type Of Coed Works With Exchange Students

By Vivian Brown (AP Newsfeatures Writer)

The girl-about-campus has changed.

Typical of the new breed of college girls is Mary Lou May, 20, of the University of Seattle, national vice-president of the College Council of the United Nations.

"The message I am trying to spread to college students everywhere is that it is most meaningful in studying the world situation to be free of cynicism and to remember you have faith in individual people," she explains.

She believes it is particularly important to single out groups of exchange students studying here and to conduct campus symposiums on the area in which they are interested.

She Ran Exhibit "One of the best aspects of this type of friendly approach is the social that may be held afterwards, where there is opportunity to learn the songs and dances of other countries and to get to know the individuals as friends. That's the best way to learn about them and their country," she points out.

Mary Lou conducted several of these symposiums at Seattle University.

Another way you can get to understand people is by working with them, she says. She ran the Peace Corps exhibit at the Seattle World's Fair during the day, and the U.N. Pavilion exhibit in the evenings, as a result of having been active for the U.N. on campus. A senior, she'll get a degree in political science. "You can get to understand people and their problems by working with them," she says.

She can take care of herself. "I've always earned my own money," she says seriously, "and I get a great deal of pleasure out of spending it wisely." She has worked as a baby sitter, ice cream dispenser, waitress and librarian.

Working for U. N.

Mary Lou, a pretty freckle-faced type is working in New York this vacation for the United Nations.

"I like to talk to people and do hard work, but when it comes to making speeches, I like other people to do it," she says, laughing.

She is one of seven children, "from a wonderfully happy home where our parents encourage us to make ourselves happy by making others happy." She'd hate to leave her father and mother, both artists and their big house in Anaheim, Calif., but she'd like to go to the Peace Corps group in Africa, learn more about the life there, just as they might like to learn about our democratic system, she says.

She can take care of herself. "I've always earned my own money," she says seriously, "and I get a great deal of pleasure out of spending it wisely." She has worked as a baby sitter, ice cream dispenser, waitress and librarian.

We love Sidewalk Days. Sure it's a lot of work lugging things in and out, and it's not as comfortable on the sidewalk as it is in the air-conditioned, soft-carpeted shop, but it's a welcome break in routine for us.

And the thing we enjoy most is all the new people who meet us and our bargains. People will leaf through a rack outdoors and rummage through a table full of oddments who would never think of coming inside to do the same thing.

Bargains are bargains, indoors or out, but sometimes maybe we intimidate people by looking more expensive than we are. Take a simple dress and add just the right scarf, just the right pin, and handbag and it looks like a million for practically pennies. That's the way we want all our customers to look, but, indoors or out, we aim to please, not high-pressure. And indoors or out, you're always welcome.

Brine Preserves Pickles; Campers Survive Storm

By Linda Pilpher

Last Thursday night, if you remember, it rained. It didn't just rain, it poured. And it poured, and it poured. Ordinarily I would be happy that it was one night I didn't have to water the flowers and shrubbery, but I was sitting in a restaurant in Canadensis trying to enjoy my meal.

Unfortunately we sat by a picture window and every time the lightning flashed, I flinched. For all I could think of was Billy on the Jersey side of the Delaware River on his first overnight camping experience away from home. I've been at the same spot during a thunder storm, and you feel as if you're helping God throw the lightning through the sky.

I wasn't the only mother switching with nervousness, I'm sure. Bert Dehl was thinking of David, Mimi MacDonough of David and Sally, and Katsy Bachman of Stevie. And we were all thinking of my sister, Jane, and Imogene Weiss, spending a wet night with eight children, ages eight to 12. Also getting soaked were Imogene's children, Brenda and Brad, and their friend, Larry.

But they survived. We found out later that they had just finished a steak dinner cooked over the fire before the rain started. And in the morning, Jane managed to fry four pounds of bacon, three pounds of potatoes, two dozen eggs, and a couple of loaves of bread. The pup tent had kept the food dry while they huddled in their sleeping bags under a tarp.

If water could have preserved them, they would have been preserved forever. But it didn't bother the children, for Billy talked about it for two days; I think the thing that made the biggest impression was that Aunt Jane gave them soda for breakfast. Aunt Jane was a sad looking sack by the time she returned the campers; it was a memorable experience — for the children.

Mrs. Carpenter will entertain the club at her home on Delaware Ave., on Aug. 15.

Woolbert Reunion

Easton—the annual Woolbert reunion will be held Sunday by the pool at Bushkill Park, Easton.

Notices have been mailed to all members known to the officers. Others who are members by either birth or marriage are invited to attend and represent their branches in the family gathering.

Thinking of preservation, I have a dill pickle recipe for you given to me by Mrs. Frances Ifft. It originally came from her husband's, Arthur's, mother, and it has been given to many people through the years. It's easy enough for even the beginner to try:

Ifft's Dill Pickles
Fill each of six jars with medium sized cucumbers, four inches in length (washed and unpeeled) three or four heads and stalks of fresh dill (or one tablespoon dill seed) 1 clove garlic.

In a kettle combine:
1 cup salt
1 cup vinegar
12 cups water
Bring to a boil and pour over pickles in jars. Put lids on jars and let stand overnight. In the morning, drain juice back into kettle, bring to a boil and pour again over pickles. Repeat for next two days. On the third morning, seal jars.

Mrs. Ifft explained to me that there are two kinds of cucumbers; round, stubby ones, and long, slicing cucumbers. She prefers the latter for making pickles, and says that when they are four inches long with a figure like a young girl, they're perfect for pickling!

Now I can see all of you studying pickles shapes! But if you have to use large cucumbers, cut them into slices before placing in jars. This next recipe comes from Mrs. Ifft's neighbor, Mrs. Fred Dennis of Lindbergh Ave., Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Dennis' Sweet

Pickle Chunks
Soak approximately 24 pickles, four or five inches in length, two weeks in a salt brine—strong enough to carry an egg. For you young people (I had to ask) this means that you pour enough salt into a kettle of water until an egg will float; this is about one box of salt to 12 quarts of water. After you put the pickles in the brine, put a lid over top and then a weight on top of the lid so that the pickles will stay under the brine. Don't use an aluminum weight; use a crock, agate container, or one made of glass. Every couple of days take lid off and remove scum. After the two weeks is up, drain off the brine. Wash pickles and cut into pieces. If they are large, cut out seedy part and use only the firm part.

Into a dishpan of water, put one tablespoon of alum (this makes cucumbers chunky crisp.) And the pickle chunks and let stand overnight.

The next morning drain the pickle chunks and put them into a crock or agate pan. Make a solution of:

2 quarts of sugar
1 quart undiluted vinegar
1 teaspoon whole cloves
2 sticks cinnamon, broken
Boil two minutes and pour over pickles. Let stand overnight. The next three mornings, drain liquid, bring to a boil, and pour over pickles. On the fourth morning, seal jars. Green food coloring can be added if desired.

Be sure that the soaking in the brine and the solution is done in a cool place. Though this is a lengthy process of making pickles, you'll be rewarded by the good taste next winter, and won't you feel just like Grandma in the old days?

The Layered Look of adult fashion is reflected in this two-part costume. The dress with the look of a shirt and skirt actually is a blue-grey pleated skirt and pin-striped white bodice, widely collared. The back-buttoned overblouse is bright red cotton knit with brass buttons above a notched hemline.

The Flaring Shift in kindergarten version is this sleeved coat dress — a field of beige and brown flowered cotton, widely collared and cuffed with beige linen.

Children's Fashions Echo Highlights

The first member of most families to get in on the new Fall styles is usually Little Sister. Little Brother usually can't be corralled until the last minute to be shod and shorn for the first day of school, but Little Sister's been talking about it for weeks.

Use a fork when you stir the liquid into the dry ingredients for pie dough and mix lightly.

Besides little girls' clothes are fun to shop for, and this year will give Mother a preview of what her own Fall wardrobe is likely to be. The sugar plum look of Alyssa clothes in girls' sizes from 2 to 14 are typical of the new styles.

Because every child has a waistline problem greater than her mothers, they have chosen their own waistlines from the flaring shift to the Empire line, and the two-piece look has a solid one-piece construction to keep that waistline in place. The collection emphasizes knitted and woven cotton and synthetic fabrics which look like wool but are more suitable for heated homes and classrooms.

Echoing adult high fashion trends is the return to long sleeves, and to dark, warm colors, with a smart touch of black.

Industry in Monroe County showed major gains last year, including a $1.7 million rise in payrolls.

Countywide, the only loss was in the number of industrial employees in Stroudsburg.

During 1962, the county had 92 manufacturing establishments employing an average of 4,768 persons. This was an increase over 1961 by 292 employees.

Sixteen percent of the employment last year was in the blouse, waist, and shirt industry. Another 12 per cent was in the fabricated plate work (machine and boiler shops) industry.

Payrolls amounted to $19,325,300 compared to $17,632,800 for 1961. That means an average of $4,053.10 per worker, as against $3,939.41 in 1961.

The value of production was up 11.6 per cent from 1961, totaling $60,556,300. Seven metal fabricating plants accounted for 18 per cent more than the $34 million in 1961.

The value added by manufacturing was computed at $35,521,400, compared to $32,689,900 the year before. Fifteen per cent of the total was added in the fabricated metals group.

The value added is figured by subtracting the cost of materials, fuel, contract work, and electrical energy from the total value of production.

Capital expenditures for 1962 were $2,883,800, with the chemical and allied products accounting for 59 per cent of the total.

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania State Police will begin working a five day week, beginning Oct. 1, Commissioner E. Wilson Purdy announced Thursday.

WHICH HAND

will You choose?

This is the hand of Justice. It reproves those people who have strayed from the path of truth and good living.

Honest men and righteous men have chosen another hand; one which is not pictured here. They never need the reproof of Justice, for they have chosen the Hand of God.

Each man is free to decide which hand will lead him. Some never see the Hand of God, and their way through life is barren and pointless.

But with the help of the Church, you can find the right path. By attending its services and joining in its work, your way through life can be made straight and happy. Take the Hand of God, and you need never fear stern Justice.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For the children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Stock Retains AAU Backstroke Crown

CHICAGO (AP) — Defending champion Tom Stock of the Indiana University easily retained his 200-meter backstroke title Friday but failed to challenge his own world record in the opening session of the National AAU swimming and diving meet.

After a startling morning failure by world record holder and defending champion Chet Jastrzemski to qualify in the 100-meter backstroke, Stock captured the first of the day's six finals by 10 feet in the modest time of 2:12.4.

Last year at Cayahoga Falls, Ohio, Stock won in world, American and meet record time of 2:10.9.

The opening final at suburban Oak Park's Ridgeland community pool produced a tie for second in the 200 backstroke between Ed Bartsch, University of Michigan's Pan American champion from Philadelphia, and Princeton's Eastern collegiate champion, Jed Graef, clocked in the identical time of 2:15.6.

High Schooler Wins
Don Schollander, 17-year-old Santa Clara, Calif., high school swimmer, won the 400-meter freestyle title by 25 feet over veteran Bill Farley of the Los Angeles A. C. in 4:17.7. This compared with the 4:17.2 mark set by Australia's Murray Rose last year when Schollander finished second.

Farley, Michigan star, touched out Pan American champion Roy Saari for second place by two feet.

The 22-year-old pre-med student from Toledo, Ohio, said he would try to qualify in the 200 breaststroke Saturday.

Otherwise, the form swimmers qualified as expected in the morning trials for afternoon championship competition in four other events—400 meter free style, 100 butterfly, 200 backstroke, and 400 individual medley.

In all, 14 swimming events will be contested this weekend in suburban Oak Park's Ridgeland community pool. The 3-meter springboard diving trials were held in Chicago's Portage Park pool with defending champion Lee Vitucci of Blue Hills Country Club, Boston, standing seventh after the preliminary round, led by ex-Oak State star Tom Gompf.

Besides Jastrzemski, two other defending swim champions were in action Friday morning. Another Hoosier star, Ted Stokich, world record holder, had a 4:58.7 clocking in the 400 individual medley, second to Ralph Kendrick enrolled as an Indiana freshman.

Kendrick stroked to a 4:58.5.

Law Quits Baseball

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Veteran Vernon Law's baseball journey—a rocky one the last few years—was halted Friday by retirement, but he said it might not be the end of his pitching career.

The hero of the Pittsburgh Pirates' 1960 World Series triumph over the New York Yankees, who injured his arm following a "freak accident" that year, placed himself on the voluntary disabled list.

However, the 33-year-old right-hander called the "decision," indicated he may try a comeback next year.

As for his retirement, the veteran of 13 years in the National League, said:

"I could see that I wasn't going to be used as a starter or reliever and rather than sit around on the bench and be a burden I felt it would be best to retire."

He said Manager Danny Murtagh told him that he felt he had lost something on his fast ball. He was 45 this year with a 4.36 ERA and had completed only one of 12 starts.

Law, who won 119 major league games and lost 111, joined the Pirates in 1950 and was on top of his profession in 1960. That year he posted a 20-9 record and in addition, won two World Series games and was voted the Cy Young Award the best pitcher in baseball.

But one day that year something occurred that led to his sore arm. In September in Milwaukee the Pirates clinched the National League pennant—their first in 33 years.

A celebration took place on the team bus and Law said someone tried to remove his shoe without untying it with the result he suffered a twisted ankle.

"It bothered me the whole (World) Series, and pitching with an unnatural motion caused my arm to go sore," Law said.

In 1961 Law posted a 3-4 mark and went on the disabled list in July. Last year he won 10 and lost 7.

Split Gives West Two Fronts To Watch

(Fifth in a five-part series)
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

THE WORST may be yet to come for world Communists, already severely shaken by the Soviet-Chinese feud.

Up to now the battle has been between two Communist parties, ostensibly over ideology. It may move on — to a feud between governments.

If that happens, the point of no return will have been passed. Red leaders around the globe will face dismal prospects of progressive splintering and slow disintegration in the world Communist movement.

Slender threads now link Moscow and Peking. For East and West, this can mean an entirely new phase of the cold war. It can mean that some day in the distant future Moscow will find more ground for common cause with the West.

But for the foreseeable future, the West will have two fronts to watch. It will be trying to counter the Kremlin's political and economic campaigns to advance communism short of world war. At the same time it will be trying to contain violence in Asia.

There is danger now that the impatient Red Chinese, seared of waiting for the Kremlin's green light, may on their own step up the war in South Viet Nam.

But for the U.S.S.R., too, it will begin to look like a two-front conflict. Moscow, pursuing an avowed goal of world revolution through attrition against the West, will keep a wary eye on the rambunctious and reckless Chinese who still could touch off the catastrophic showdown. Moscow will be wary, too, of Peking's attempts to form a bloc of Communist parties in the underdeveloped world.

The Chinese refer ominously to old border disputes with the Russians.

Splintering in Parties

While the Chinese and Soviet delegations danced their futile ideological minuet at the mid-July Moscow meeting, the extent of the damage was becoming ever more apparent.

Today, the Kremlin no longer is the infallible center of world communism. There are two centers now. Moscow concedes that splintering is taking place in parties around the world — in Brazil, in Italy, in Australia and many other places.

In India, the party is forced into orientation toward Moscow for fear of losing public support, in view of Peking's aggressions on India's borders.

But the rest of the Asian Communists are lining up with Red China. Strongly pro-Chinese are the Red Korean and North Vietnamese parties. The Indonesian party — world's largest — outside the Communist orbit — is disturbed but leaning toward China.

The Japanese party is badly split. The split seems to go right down through the middle of the world movement.

Red China advances the notion that Moscow controls only a temporary majority of the world's parties.

There seems to be rising trouble for Moscow with its European satellites. Albania, tiny, isolated and out of reach of the Muscovites, stands alone in Europe openly on the Chinese side. But the split has affected others.

Romania, though pro-Moscow, has made significant overtures to the Chinese, apparently as a means of defending herself against a Kremlin attempt to dominate and direct her economy.

The feud encourages satellite leaders to plump for more freedom of action in their own countries. Czech, Polish, Hungarian and even Bulgarian leaders may be secretly pleased with some aspects of the split, although they support Moscow. The feud tends to give them more importance.

Perhaps they can get more concessions from the Kremlin, so long as it needs their support. Only the East German regime seems wholly and willingly a creature of Moscow.

Khrushchev's policy of guarding against the accident which might touch off World War III was sanctified by the 22nd Soviet Party Congress in 1961. But he has been on the defensive, clearly, in explaining it to those of the world's Communist leaders who seem to suspect they are being used as pawns for Soviet power politics.

Almost plaintively, Khrushchev has denied Peking's charge that he has been "begging for peace." He has claimed his policy remains unrelenting ideological war against the West, that it already has damaged the West in the Middle East, Algeria, Southeast Asia and elsewhere. He insists he has shown results by creating suspicions and divisions inside the western alliance.

The Chinese brush it aside as nonsense. If they had their way, Khrushchev and those who support him would be deposed. But the chances of this seem slight. The dispute seems to have strengthened Khrushchev's standing inside the U.S.S.R. as the man who promises peace and an era of abundance.

Thus the prospects are for more divisions and splits within splits in the Communist world, and for a time of vast confusion.
